Date

During the current COVID-19 Pandemic

is following UK Government advice and self-isolating for 10 days (if living alone)/ 14 days (as part of a household).

As you will be aware, by law, medical evidence is not required for the first 7 days of sickness. After 7 days, employers may use their discretion around the need for medical evidence if an employee is unable to return to work.

To independently issue medical certificates for all those affected by the need to self-isolate would add further pressure to already stretched resources.

The Government has suggested that employers may use their discretion around the need for medical evidence where an employee is advised to stay at home, either as they are unwell themselves, or live with someone who is. Information for employers can be found via the following link.

This will allow GPs to focus on their patients' clinical needs.

Your co-operation at this time is appreciated.
